

Wayne RESA is proud to have played a role in facilitating the creation of lesson plans for Children of Abraham Day, an initiative aimed at fostering positive relationships and mutual understanding among followers of the three monotheistic religions: Judaism, Christianity, and Islam.

At Wayne RESA, we believe in the power of education to bridge gaps and promote harmony. Recognizing the common origins and shared values of these religions is crucial in today's diverse and interconnected world. In collaboration with Detroit area entrepreneur and philanthropist Farhat Qazi, Wayne RESA brought together a group of teachers from across Wayne County to develop lesson plans that highlight the rich history, beliefs, and contributions of Judaism, Christianity, and Islam. These lesson plans are designed to be engaging and informative, providing students with the knowledge and understanding necessary to dispel misconceptions and foster respect for different faiths. By teaching our children about the common religious heritage of these three monotheistic religions, we aim to lay the foundation for future generations built upon unity, tolerance, and goodwill.

The mission of Children of Abraham Day aligns closely with Wayne RESA's commitment to promoting inclusivity and cultural awareness in education. We are proud to be part of this initiative and to contribute to its success. The lesson plans we have helped develop will serve as valuable resources for educators, allowing them to integrate these important teachings into their curriculum and classrooms.

We extend our heartfelt gratitude to all those who have been involved in bringing these lesson plans to fruition, and we look forward to witnessing the positive impact that this initiative will undoubtedly have on our community and beyond. Together, we can pave the way for a more harmonious and understanding society.
